A 50-year-old man was killed on Sunday when he was hit by a car as he and a companion were walking in the parking lot of a Big Lots store in Great Falls. A woman who was with the man called 911 about 3:45 p.m. Sunday and said that he had been hit on the right side of his body by a vehicle, according to the Great Falls Police Department. Officers responding to the call found the man, whose identity has not yet been released, lying in a parking lot near the store in the 100 block of Fourth Avenue East. Officers also found a broken-down car in the parking lot. The man had suffered a head injury and died at the scene, according to the GPD. The man's identity was not released pending notification of his next of kin. Evidence technicians processed the scene and removed a vehicle in the parking lot, as well as a tire that was partially under the car. The Montana Highway Patrol is investigating the crash. The driver of the vehicle and a companion in the vehicle were not injured.Q: SQL Server: how to insert big data into big tables I have a problem. I have a big table with big data. This is simple table. How to make insert command to this table? I read about Insert like: Insert into Table1 (MyColumn) Values (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7,...) Is it possible to make insert command like: Insert into Table1 Select * from (Select top 100 * from Table1) Is this possible? Thanks A: There are other options, and of course, you can generate the insert statements yourself if you are using another tool. you can use some kind of loop like insert into Table1 select * from (values (1,2,3,4,5,6,7), (1,2,3,4,5,6,7), etc) The values() syntax creates a list of values. You can adjust the limit as needed. you can do a dynamic insert like declare @sql nvarchar(max) ='
