Scanxl Professional V3 5 1 Build 2770

.1 Hello, I need advice to find the right scanner software to scan my most recent prints. I have a Canon Pixma MX520 (10.0x optical zoom) that I use to scan my old negative film, but have not used in a long time. I would like to scan my recent digital prints (which is about 100 total) and print them. My current scanner is a Epson Perfection V600 photo scanner, that is used for non-photo printing as well. It is a professional version (model number EPS-5000), and the next one (v3) is the one that I am looking for. I have tried using the Canon software, but was very confused, and I know that Photoshop Elements was not the best choice for me. So I'm looking to see what scanner software is good for a small business, and be able to scan/print a black and white and color picture. If you need any more information, please ask. I do hope that this fits the theme of the site! pescolac, Thanks for your time and effort with this thread. You are the one who got me on the right track. My scanner's software does not have many settings, but I found the most important one here: The last line is what I am looking for. I would like to use the ISO 400 option. I am using DPI resolution for my digital prints, so is this fine, or should I use 300? I also have a Canon camera with a 22mm lens. Also, which settings should I be using on my camera for my color prints? Thank you for your help. HappyScanning! On this forum, we prefer to have threads that are more related to a printer than a scanner, since we are printing more than scanning. Happyscanning, Thanks for the feedback. I agree, I prefer having threads that are more related to a printer, and I agree that I should have probably posted this in a thread like you suggested. So I am going to close this thread and open a new one, asking about digital photo printers. I am still debating on whether or not to go with the Canon Pixma iP27
