It would include: APP_VERSION=1.3.2 When I include it in my gemspec (with a sha1) this is the error I get: Gem::Ext::BuildError: ERROR: Failed to build gem native extension. /home/g/Desktop/TEST/sources/gem-1.3.2/ext/hpricot-0.8.4/hpricot-0.8.4.gemspec:7: warning: Insecure dependency in metadata or binary /home/g/Desktop/TEST/sources/gem-1.3.2/ext/hpricot-0.8.4/hpricot-0.8.4.gemspec:3: warning: Insecure dependency in metadata or binary Is there an accepted way to include such a file for a gem? A: You can define an initializer in your gemspec: # gemspec ... spec.files = %w(lib/my_version.rb lib/my_version.rb) Q: How to add usergroup to Ubuntu 16.04 Hi i have been trying to add my users to a user group. I have just set it up so that i can create a new user and they can have a "ro" role or "normal" role. When i am setting up the new user, i am typing in the user name and a password, then I can see the username and password by typing in a terminal. Then at the end i can see the following : Then i press ctrl+d and all i get is this : However when i am trying to add the same user to the group "users" it just does nothing. I have also set a new user to use the username "rutangia" and that works well. I also tried using "sudo adduser rutangia users" to
