Thomas Boyd Thomas Boyd (died 1759) was an Irish barrister and a colonel in the service of the Honourable East India Company. He was born in County Monaghan. He was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, son of William Boyd, a Protestant, and Grizel, an ambitious, ambitious woman. At the age of 19 he joined the Bombay Company's merchant service. On 24 March 1738 he was appointed purser on the St. Vincent. On 10 April 1738 the three young men were part of the crew which stood off the coast of California looking for the San Diego harbour. On 29 May 1739, Boyd was appointed captain of the St. Vincent. The vessel had been on a sealer voyage to the San Francisco for her return trip and Boyd had avoided duties in the Pacific. On 25 August 1739 St. Vincent sailed for China and on 10 October she arrived at Whampoa anchorage in front of Macao where she stayed for six weeks. The following spring she carried out duties in Canton, Xiamen and along the coast of Malaya. On 18 May 1740, Boyd was on board the St. Vincent when she was captured by the French. She arrived at Brest on 10 June and the next day she was brought into Rochefort. The town of Brest also had a custom house and Port Louis was French home port. On 12 June the ship was placed in a cartel along with 22 other British ships. A cartel was a set of laws between nations to enforce international commerce. There was a cartel between France and Britain. The French captain expected the British captain, Boyd, to sign a document stipulating certain conditions. Boyd refused to sign the cartel, so he was arrested and then imprisoned in Brest Castle. At Brest, Boyd was put in contact with British and French agents in order to find a ransom. Boyd hired a French lawyer and paid the lawyer a share of his ransom to help him get a ransom. On the morning of 10 July 1740 Boyd and four guards were released from his prison and put on a boat headed for the English island of Jersey where a private owner, Francis Baring, was holding Boyd for ransom. On the boat there was a steward and a clerk. After being freed,

I know what you're thinking. Then you saw this. Well, I could keep going... Or you can stick with this post... But you probably don't need to scroll any further (go ahead... I'll wait...). Which is good, because I was trying to write a post for this week's "What is it?" entries. Now, if you can't tell from all that, this post is about something I found today. A baby bull. In the middle of a paddock. With his mother. Also, he was pretty interested in me. After he got over the surprise (which was handled incredibly well), he happily trotted up to me and let me pet him. And ride him. Have we mentioned that this was the first time I'd been on a dirt bike? The second time, I rode all over the Rangitaiki Farm Property for a bit of off road fun. So, as well as being a new experience for me, it's a new experience for the baby bull. The top end from the back of the seat to the front of his shoulder is slightly higher than his belly.
