Jun 23, 2021 - Otherwise, you may want to update or downgrade the operating system on your smartphone. The only solution is to flash the stock ROM on your device. The firmware can usually be downloaded from the official website of the ROM manufacturer, in our case it is Samsung. But we strongly recommend that you always choose the original version of the firmware, which does not contain any changes from the developers. This will not only help to ensure stability and security of your device, but also not to lose your favorite apps and features. Below you will find a guide on how to flash the stock firmware on Galaxy S10e/S10/S9/S9+/Note 8/Note 9/Note 10 using Odin.
