Do you wish to learn a new language but cannot afford to pay a translator? Well, there is a Metro application for Windows 10 devices that can help you achieve just that. "Translator English-Spanish" is a simple application for Windows 10, which allows you to learn how to say something in Spanish just by translating sentences and phrases from English to Spanish. You can have two different languages available at once and do not need to bother with technical issues. The app is simple and easy to use: you can quickly download it from the Microsoft Store and launch it on any Windows 10, 8, or 8.1 device. Main features: - Learn how to say a certain phrase in a new language - Translate English to Spanish and vice versa - Pronounce the translated text in a new language - Manage the supported languages and typefaces in your application - View the syntax of a specific word in the target language Wished I knew this sooner! If you have a Windows 8 or 8.1 device you can now enjoy Microsoft Translator on your desktop without having to run in your web browser. There's a web app now in the Store that works like the Windows 10 version, but it requires a Windows Live account to activate and you can only have one version in one language at a time. The Store listing for the web app is no longer on the Microsoft Store home page, but here's a direct link to the Translator for Windows site. Just click the translator to switch languages on the tile bar, or select the Language button in the top right corner of your window. If you have a Windows Live account and you're running Windows 8 or 8.1, you can now activate the web app directly from the Store without having to login first. Microsoft Translator is a text-to-speech and speech-to-text application for Windows 10. It offers a simple and handy interface for translating text, using the Bing service as a back-end. How to use: After installing the application, open the Settings window and you can choose the languages you want to use. By default, you will be able to use French, Spanish, German and Italian. If you want to change the languages, go to the General tab and use the language button next to each language. To start translating, select any text in the program, hold down the CTRL key and select any text in the program, hold down the CTRL

Translator English-Spanish is a simplistic app made for desktops and tablets running Windows 10, 8 and 8.1, which facilitates a user-friendly interface for translating text from English to Spanish, and vice versa. It has a text-to-speech feature for those who want to find out how words and phrases are pronounced. Simple Metro app for translating text The Metro app can be swiftly downloaded by visiting the Microsoft Store and integrated with the Start Screen or Menu, in accordance with the Windows version you're running. There are two boxes displayed in the central window, where you can enter text and view the translation. It's necessary to pick the source and output language from a couple of menus, as well as to click a button to run the translation service. Word pronunciation and search features Apart from the fact that you can hear how the written text is pronounced in either language, you can also slide to the next panel to look up Spanish words on a website provided by Translator English-Spanish. Buttons for selecting or pasting text are available in the right-click menu. Moreover, you can share the product with other people using email, OneNote or another platform you have installed as a means of communication. Evaluation and conclusion Unfortunately, Translator English-Spanish cannot work without an active Internet connection. We've also noticed that it takes a rather long time to complete a translation, even in the case of short sentences. Nevertheless, the Metro app offers a straightforward solution for translating words between English and Spanish, as well as for using the pronunciation feature. As we expected from such a compact software package, it didn't hog system resources in our tests, running on low CPU and RAM. It can be seamlessly handled by all kinds of users, even those less experienced with translators.
