The first released a trailer The second will be worldwide on June 4th, 2016. invention relates to tape cassette housings, and more particularly to a housing which automatically locks a tape reel in a cassette, in the event of a drop. Recently, miniaturization of video cassette recorders is progressing, and in particular, with the recent advent of video cassette recorders employing tape cassettes which can be readily carried, the need has arisen for reduction in size of the cassette itself. Also, since such video cassette recorders are increasing in number, and since they are designed to operate for a long time without maintenance, it is important that the cassette containing a magnetic recording tape can be loaded in the recorder as soon as possible. Conventional video cassette recorders do not have the ability to prevent accident or mishaps, and a tape cassette used therein must therefore be equipped with a mechanism for preventing a tape reel from being rotated in event of a drop of the cassette housing. With tape cassettes used in digital recording, it is not acceptable for a magnetic tape to run when there is a gap between the tape and the head. Thus, a full-wound condition of the tape must be maintained at all times. Thus, on the assumption that the cassette housing might be dropped, and since errors in the tape running cannot be detected with a conventional tape cassette, a mechanism for locking the tape reel when the cassette is dropped is provided. Also, when the cassette is not dropped, a mechanism for unlocking the tape reel by releasing the locking mechanism is provided. There are many types of housings for tape cassettes. One such type is illustrated in FIG. 1 of the accompanying drawings. This housing includes a top cover 1 and a bottom cover 2, which are formed by injection molding of a synthetic resin into a prescribed shape. To this bottom cover 2 are attached, through a flange portion 2a, a tape reel 3, a driving drum 4 and a pinch roller 5, all of which are components of a tape drive mechanism located within the cassette. The bottom cover 2 is adapted to be fixed to the housing by screws 10 which are tightened against the bottom cover 2 with set screws 6. The top cover 1 is snap-fitted into the top of the bottom cover 2. However, the bottom cover 2 shown in FIG. 1 is disadvantageous in that it has a number of components, necessitating the provision of
