WBS is a program designed to assist you in the process of estimating a project. It is especially useful for creating a database of tasks and grouping them into subtasks, which are then used for estimating their size. In addition to a database of tasks, the program allows you to include notes, hyperlinks and define categories for each item. Moreover, WBS has many options which allow you to modify the look of the GUI and customize it according to your needs. Features: WBS is a standalone software, which means that it requires no installation on your computer. The main window is resizable and can be moved anywhere on the screen. In the bottom left corner of the window there is a small image of the tree, which contains the menu and the elements of the structure. Below the window there is a toolbar with the standard controls. The menu bar contains all the elements of the program, which are accessible from the top. Most of the menu items are self-explanatory, while some of them have a description attached to them in order to assist you. Most of the elements of the structure can be collapsed, which means that they are not visible when the program is minimized or turned off. To add a task you need to click on the '+' symbol. By default the program creates a project based on the structure that you have created previously. If you want to modify an existing database, click on the 'Up' button. There are a number of elements that can be added to the structure. These are files, projects, tasks, links, notes and tags. Clicking on the 'Project' icon (the small plus sign) creates a new project. Tasks and links are used to group similar items, while notes, files and links are used to create subtasks. To add a new link, click on the link icon (the small chain link). Next, you need to click on the name of the element which you want to add to the database. By default the programs creates new categories and subtasks automatically, but it is possible to change this if you want. Clicking on the 'Tasks' icon creates a new subtask. After that, you need to select the category or subtask which you want to add. The elements will be added to this category or subtask. If you want to rename the item, select the element and click on the 'Rename' button. After that you can click on the checkbox to the left of the category or subtask in order to select it. You can add notes by clicking on the 'Note' icon. By default, the program will create a new one, while it is possible to set the number of notes to be displayed by clicking on the 'Notes' button. Using a checkbox to the left of the elements, you can select the items which you want to display in the report
