Indihiang displays information from IIS logs. It displays information about the current server and its users. It analyzes logs in a lot of information, which is a lot of information. Indihiang's log analyzer functionality includes, but not limited to, data mining and data analysis from log text files. It includes many categories, graphs, and some reports in various categories. Indihiang does not use heuristics or any type of pattern matching algorithms. It just analyzes the text file and generates the report. It reads the text file and does the analysis. Indihiang uses Wi-Fi or LAN and the Windows operating system. Indihiang can analyze logs from Windows Server 2003 SP2, Windows Server 2008 SP2, Windows Server 2008 R2 SP1, Windows 7 SP1 and Windows Server 2012. Indihiang log analyzer functionality is compatible with all IIS Web servers. Indihiang is designed to analyze user, system, and system process logs. Indihiang is cloud-based software. It uses cloud-based servers to store the log data. Indihiang collects log data using the windows built-in logging facility, such as the windows Event Viewer. The log data is stored in the database, and the SQL tables. The log data is stored in the database that supports the SQL commands of Indihiang. This database can be backed up, and stored on the network. The SQL table can be backed up using a ZIP archive. Indihiang is configurable using text and XML files. The configurable files are the manifest and the event templates. The manifest tells Indihiang what the tool does. It also tells the tool how the configurations are placed. The XML file contains the event templates. The templates tell Indihiang how to analyze the log data. Indihiang is free software. Indihiang requires Windows OS, and Microsoft SQL Server (or SQL). If using Windows Server 2003, it can also use Windows Server 2008 SP2, Windows Server 2008 R2 SP1, Windows 7 SP1 and Windows Server 2012.
