"You know how terrorists have used Americans as unwitting carriers of bombs on their bodies? That's exactly what we're doing," said a health care worker who spoke with President Obama on Friday. "Not only are we not ready to stop the hemorrhaging, we are training our hospital staff to bleed the patient and give them Band-Aids to heal the wound. This is a man-made epidemic by a traitorous administration." Friday's briefing was held with the only three patients known to be infected by the Ebola virus, not counting any infected agents or nurses who have not come forward. Staff were asked to put any clinical concerns about Ebola into an anonymous electronic "secure" communication channel to a "patient advocate." The entire process was filmed and the results will be observed through security cameras when a panel of armed Department of Defense officers enters the room. The complete removal of all personal identifiers in the patient records makes it very difficult for the infected patients to contact any of their families outside the secure area. Although the Secure-base unit can contain a large staff, they are limited to only the conversation necessary to handle their duties and no discussions of the Ebola outbreak were allowed. Aside from the questions being addressed by the staff, the other issue of concern is their collective lack of 3da54e8ca3
