Windows Key Disabler Free Trial Version Installing Windows Key Disabler, you need: Windows Key Disabler Windows 10 Version 1703 (or later) Worked fine. The only problem I had was my old monitor was listed as being on a different side of the screen than the screen. (It's actually a dual monitor arrangement.) It works as described, but I can see a couple of bugs... ..the tray icon only appears if you double-click the icon. If you right-click, 'Save as' and select 'Shortcut' it saves the icon as the actual thing, but does nothing when you double click it... ..the 'logo' tray icon (whatever it's called, it sits to the right of the tray icon) doesn't seem to work at all. These are minor quibbles, though, and a simple fix to at least one bug (the icon that shows up when you right-click the icon and 'Save as' -> 'Shortcut'). This was exactly what I was looking for. A small executable that restarts when you click it and a simple
