A neonatal rat heart cell culture system was used to study the expression of the N-terminal (M(r) 55,000) fragment of procollagen-III in response to hypoxia. Hypoxic stress induced the expression of the N-terminal fragment of procollagen-III. This was visualized by immunohistochemical staining of the heart with a mixture of antibodies against the N-terminal fragment of collagen-III and collagen-I. The expression pattern and the extent of staining of the N-terminal fragment coincided with those of collagen-I. These observations suggest that the neonatal rat heart culture system is a valuable tool for further studies on cell and molecular mechanisms of the synthesis of collagens in the mammalian heart.Q: Symfony - How do you move an old version of code to a new Symfony project We're using Symfony 2.4 and are switching from one development application to another development application. Our web app is in Symfony 2.4 but the new application is Symfony 2.6. We are looking at moving all of our code to the new application. My question is what best practices do you follow when moving existing code from a 2.4 app to a 2.6 app? Here is what I have learned so far: Migrating from 2.2 to 2.4 is much easier than 2.4 to 2.6 as we did the migration in 1.5hrs and it was alot easier than going from 2.6 to 2.4 in

I have some input fields, those elements are created dynamically. I need to call the function when user click on submit button. The problem is focus is automatically on first element. How to prevent focus to first element? Here is my code: $("#button").click(function () { $.ajax({ url: '/api/test', type: 'POST', data: { ID: ID } success: function (data) { $('#input').remove(); $('#input').append(""); }, }); }); This is the screen: It's clear that everything works, but how to change focus to last input? Thank you! A: You can use the delay() method to set a delay before performing the action. $("#button").click(function () { $.ajax({ url: '/api/test', type: 3e33713323
