Alfred E. Smith Memorial Hospital is a hospital in Buffalo, New York. It is located in the center of the South Buffalo neighborhood of South Buffalo. Services Alfred E. Smith Memorial Hospital is located at 649 Seneca Street. It is a major medical center in the Buffalo community. In addition to its medical clinic, it also has a pediatric care unit, an adult outpatient facility, pharmacy, imaging center, a fitness center, cafeteria, and research facilities. History The hospital opened in August 1901, on the site of the former Lockport Hospital. It was the 10th hospital to open in Buffalo. The hospital was named after New York State's 10th Governor, Alfred E. Smith. Alfred E. Smith was born and lived in Lockport. During the Civil War, he was a Colonel in the New York Volunteers and was wounded and taken prisoner. He rose to the rank of Brigadier General and then to the U.S. vice presidency. Smith was also the first candidate of the Democratic Party to win the presidency since the Civil War. He is best remembered for his statement that "the election of 1912 was the turning point in the history of this nation". The hospital was expanded in 1913. Services The hospital was the first major medical center in South Buffalo, due to its location in the center of the community. It is one of the few hospitals that serve the city's predominately African-American residents. It is also noted for its specialized care for the blind and visually impaired. Alfred E. Smith Memorial Hospital is a member of Western New York's group of hospitals that includes Erie County Medical Center, Buffalo General Hospital, and Buffalo General Medical Center.
