Google Mini

Google Mini is a small widget that when placed on your Dashboard allows you to search Google from your desktop. The search interface is similar to Yahoo Mini. Google Mini is based on Yahoo Mini so the look of the widget is similar to the Yahoo Mini Widget. Google Mini compatible with both Windows and Mac OS X. How to install Google Mini: Step 1: Download Google Mini from SourceForge (google-mini-3.6-windows.zip) Step 2: Extract the files (unzip google-mini-3.6-windows.zip) Step 3: Drag the googlemini.xml to your Dashboard Step 4: Open the Google Mini WidgetSee above for this week's Top of the Amps. I should have been in a studio, but I didn't get a chance to sneak away for this week. A little late on the list, but here goes anyway: Koshino has a new album out in June called "Phoenix." It's got songs by a wide variety of artists (including BMG teenyboppers like Hayley

Williams of Paramore and the Dave Matthews band), but the song he's really big on is "Utopia," featuring Neil Young. Check it out. Nikki Beach's new CD is "No One Can Change Me." It came out last month and they just previewed it a few days ago. Give it a listen. Boston's new album is called "Vivarium." I'm not a huge fan of the lead singer, Luke Gagne, but the rest of the band has an unbelievably great sound. Check it out. Sixty Second to Mars is the project of Sammy Lawhorn. He is a very cool guy. Check out his site. Shiny Toys Records issued a 6-song CDEP called "Sun In My Bed" last month. It features songs from bands like Apocalyptica, Disturbed, The 2007 Vans Warped Tour, and more. Check it out. Sugarfree Records has put together an awesome compilation CD to honor the launch of their magazine. The album features headliners like Common, Linkin Park, Rachael Yamagata, and more. Check it out. Smooth/Virgin put out a new CD last week called "Take It For A Ride." It's got some big guitar sounds from Steve Vai, Gary Cherone, Bryan Adams, and so on, but it's b7e8fdf5c8
