Possible role of the protein kinase C-dependent pathway in the regulation of the inositol lipid-specific phospholipase C beta 1: differential modulation by phorbol ester of phosphatidylinositol 4,5-bisphosphate hydrolysis and  $[Ca^{2+}]_i$  increase in enriched mammary cell preparations. In order to understand the mechanisms regulating the phospholipase C (PLC) activity in cells, we have used isolated mammary epithelial cells and enriched subcellular fractions to assess the role of the protein kinase C-dependent pathway in the modulation of the inositol lipid-specific PLC (PLC-beta 1). It was shown that the phosphatidylinositol 4,5-bisphosphate (PIP<sub>2</sub>) hydrolysis elicited by activation of the protein kinase C pathway was directly stimulated by the phorbol ester 12-O-tetradecanoylphorbol 13-acetate (TPA), whereas the  $[Ca^{2+}]_i$  increase was inhibited. The stimulatory effect of TPA was associated with a decrease in PIP<sub>2</sub> content. Studies using enriched subcellular fractions isolated from these mammary cells revealed that the PLC-beta 1 activity was stimulated in a PIP<sub>2</sub>-independent manner and the increase in enzyme activity was concomitant with an increase in the  $[Ca^{2+}]_i$ . The degree of stimulation of PIP<sub>2</sub> hydrolysis by  $[Ca^{2+}]_i$  increase was inversely related to the PIP<sub>2</sub> content in the membranes. Our results suggest that the PIP<sub>2</sub> hydrolysis elicited by the protein kinase C-dependent pathway is directly stimulated by this kinase and that the final effect is directly or indirectly related to the  $[Ca^{2+}]_i$  increase in the cell.) + SQR(vn2[1]) + D(vk[1]) + 2 * vk[1] * vn2[2] * D(VK2[1]); z = vn3[0]; vn3[0] = z + SQR(vn2[2]) + D(vn1[2]) + 2 * v fell out because of alleged infidelity on Jay Z's part, the Daily Mail's royal commentator Kate Maltby writes. A source told Daily Mail Online: "There had been a couple of incidents in public over the last two years, including one in New York in June. But the couple have gone their separate ways." Despite the claims, the source says Bey will never end up in a relationship with anyone but herself. "It's not a divided world but a divided couple," the source said. "Bey will never marry, and she will never have a guy who is a stepfather to her children. She and Jay will never marry, and she will never have a guy who is a stepfather to her children. Beyoncé is not interested in having children, and she doesn't intend to settle down with anyone anytime soon." "Beyoncé has said in the past that she wants children and a home of her own, but she's not ready to settle down," the source continued. "She's in a very difficult situation, having to juggle being a mom and being an actress and an artist." At the end of the age-old dispute over the ownership of Mount Rushmore, the U.S. Commission of Fine Arts today recommended that the four presidential heads be removed and the site be transformed into a memorial to all of America. According to the report, the only other country that regularly and prominently has memorials to all of its citizens is the Soviet Union. "It is the commission's opinion that no one American should be singled out for memorialization above all others," the report said. The commission was working on the report while a new book by Richard Williams, The Social Meaning of the American Monuments, was making its rounds. "Williams's book explains in compelling detail how Mount Rushmore was initially designed as a monumental statement of white supremacy," said the report. "It brought out all the worst characteristics of Western civilization." Four years ago, a commission convened by George W. Bush removed a large sculpture depicting African-American civil-rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. from the National Mall. The
