Exclusive preview by @theformseller New Products from Murrieta, California's Hickey-Freeman The DIY superstars behind Hickey-Freeman are back with a new collection of masculine apparel that's anything but "stay at home." Exclusive preview by @theformseller by Jay Dyer | July 26, 2018 The DIY superstars behind Hickey-Freeman are back with a new collection of masculine apparel that's anything but "stay at home." Exclusive preview by @theformseller We have all been there, whether it be at the workplace or out in public. Caught in between being "at work" or "out of work" when it comes to dressing your furry friend. That is unless you're lucky enough to have someone there to help you get out of your swag predicament! With The Formseller (which also happens to be Jay's nickname on Instagram) being one of the first to announce Hickey-Freeman's super-soft new fursuit, the talented DIYers have brought their sleek and perfectly tailored silhouettes to life! I reached out to the DIY superstars behind Hickey-Freeman and asked them to share more about the new collection of fursuit-friendly clothing. I asked them why they designed a line specifically for fursuiters. And where did their inspiration come from? "We have a lot of fun dressing up our fursuits in various situations and with our friends, and it's usually just to have a little fun and hang out. Sometimes it can be very awkward, as being in a fursuit is not the best place to be in public sometimes! It's nice to be able to have a stealth fursuit, or be able to cover up your fursuit without a ton of hassle and drama. It's all about having fun. As furries, we love our fursonas. Often, it's a big part of our identity. We love to dress and present ourselves how we want to be, so it really is a very natural progression

A rendering of the Turf Paradise development in North Las Vegas. Courtesy of Ed Cassity A North Las Vegas community group has taken the city to court over a land deal that saw 4,600 acres of public land sold to an entity called the North Las Vegas Group. The trust, Community Better Block Las Vegas, says the initial agreement approved by the North Las Vegas Planning Commission on Oct. 5, 2015, wasn't properly advertised, and was therefore invalid. The trust's lawsuit was filed in Clark County District Court on Jan. 13. The case will be heard in district court at a date to be set. The North Las Vegas Group bought the land for $8.2 million. The trust, along with some residents, have expressed concerns about the effect the land sale will have on the community. They say the land is prime agricultural land, and that they'll be unable to farm it. Community Better Block Las Vegas is a nonprofit dedicated to improving neighborhoods in North Las Vegas and was formed last year by residents, including North Las Vegas Mayor Pat Patterson. The trust's website says the land was purchased "under the guise of a development deal." The trust argues the North Las Vegas Planning Commission lacked the authority to approve the land purchase, and the North Las Vegas City Council lacked the authority to approve a land sale for a development that was not on the city's plan. It also argues the land sale was invalid because it did not receive proper city approval. The trust also is pursuing a state investigation to find out if there were improper payments made to the North Las Vegas Planning Commission. The land sale was approved despite a community group, American Neighbors for a Better North Las Vegas, voicing concerns about the deal at two public hearings held in May 2016. The group's concerns came on the heels of another group, Nation Wants a Better Life, raising more than 100,000 signatures in a petition against the land sale. That group has been vocal in its opposition since its inception two years ago. The community group also hired attorney Paul Stark to challenge the land sale at a public hearing on June 22, 2016. Stark argued the City Council was on notice of the trust's concerns and should have told the Planning Commission to hold off. Stark also argued it would be unjust to allow the sale to go forward because the trust and community had no say in the land use
