“Our latest feature is ‘HyperMotion Technology,’” said Rory Smith, Producer, FIFA. “With its ability to process up to three million frames per second, every action in the virtual world will be smoother and more realistic.” Using this technology, the motion capture data collected from “real” players when they perform physical actions on the pitch is processed and applied to Player Impact FX. They will be more powerful, as players will be more convincing, either controlling the ball in the air, hitting or defending with full velocity. They’ll also be less forgiving to defenders and less forgiving to the players’ own mistakes. “You’re going to be amazed at how the player physics and Player Impact FX will react when the ball hits them,” says Smith. “We’re working with the football authorities at FIFA’s request to work out the best processes to help them. This new technology is a real step forward for the football game.” We can also now see what kind of gesture animations we will be able to implement, such as a ‘shoot’ gesture to pass to the player standing next to you on the pitch. Implemented Features - Create-A-Striker As players receive a high amount of experience and build more skills, they become even more of an attacking threat. “FIFA is a game about creating your dream team,” says Geert-Jan Delcour, Producer, FIFA. “In FIFA 22 we’re creating more options to make this dream team even stronger, including a new Create-A-Striker feature.” A new Create-A-Striker feature is now available on all platforms, allowing you to create, own and select your own player silhouette. You can use this silhouette to create your own player on a pitch in FIFA 22. “All FIFA games have been built up from the ground up with this idea in mind - of being able to create your own player. Create-A-Striker is no different. Create your very own

Fifa 22 2022 [New]

Here's more on what's included in FIFA 22's "HyperMotion Technology": Ball control After FIFA 19, FIFA has added an innovative ball control system that is intuitive and easy to use and maximizes control while responding to how players interact with the ball. Ball control in FIFA 21 was the most featured feature - and the most discussed in our user survey results. Fan emotion engine FIFA 21 introduced to the game's team AI full control of all players on the pitch - which includes how they approach the ball and how they use the opposition's ball circulation to their advantage. This means that some of the game's players still don't feel authentic - especially during duels. We're changing this by using a new emotion engine that helps players feel the pressure of the situation and react in a more realistic way - based on their mental and emotional state. It's getting more difficult to defend AI-controlled players from the front, therefore we've added a tactical awareness system that enables players to predict where the opposing team is going to attack. As a result, we're constantly adapting the AI and the ball control systems to new situations in both defense and attack. More on the new tactical awareness system Player intelligence Tackling has been improved in FIFA 21. Following a new player interception AI, we've developed an interception AI that detects, anticipates and tackles incoming passes more accurately and combines this with the new ball control system. The new interception AI learns from the players' performance in FIFA 21 and is adapted over the duration of the season based on the opponent's tactics and evolution of opposing players' technical skills. The interception AI has also been improved to be even more accurate with pressure. Furthermore, we've incorporated our new defensive AI system into the game. This enables players to take control of defenders in certain situations and clear the ball away more accurately. Ball circulation and offsides We've made a few changes to the game's ball circulation system which should make the game even more diverse and challenging. In FIFA 21, players simply weren't using enough of the game's ball circulation. The ball circulation also tends to be unpredictable, sometimes doesn't follow the player's run and often has a random direction.
