I came to this question and I felt the?? were a bit of an understatement, and added a lot of nothing. This is a major problem in my opinion, but I answered it anyway to see the result. See the: I get 0. The main issue with this is that it proves (since it has zero pts) that I didn't already have the question mark option. A: The "Are you sure you want to leave?" question mark thing is a new kind of default close reason that's been introduced in the last few weeks. It is still evolving, hence the name, but if you start to use it you'll more often get the?? than "not clear what is being asked". The question mark close reason actually becomes a more accurate description of what the problem is than the close reason is. It happens so infrequently in meta that it's always with a new user, and they will see this question close vote reason and not understand what's going on. A: Many users get a little upset when a question is marked as closed without enough info, and are amazed when they find out the question is close due to the fact that the question is unclear. The message may help you understand the reason. Iso
