(Reuters) - Microsoft Corp said on Thursday its non-GAAP operating margin for the second quarter ended June 30 rose to a record high of 9.7 percent, driven by performance of its cloud business and investments in AI and high-growth businesses. FILE PHOTO: A Microsoft sign is seen outside of its headquarters in Redmond, Washington, U.S., October 13, 2016. REUTERS/Brian Snyder/File Photo The world's largest software company said its operating income in the quarter, as a percentage of revenue, increased to 23 percent from 16 percent a year earlier as investments in some high-growth businesses are paying off, while continuing investments in newer products and continued cost-reductions helped offset lower sales of personal computers and servers. In a regulatory filing, Microsoft said it expected revenue of about $28.1 billion, unchanged from the first quarter. Its net income was $6.9 billion, or $1.18 per share, up from $5.6 billion, or $1.01 per share, a year earlier. The company's non-GAAP operating margin in the quarter was 9.7 percent, up from 8.7 percent a year earlier. The company's cloud business, which offers infrastructure and software services, grew 47 percent, and became its highest-performing division by margin and revenue, Microsoft said. The company's Xbox gaming business also benefited from the launch of its new flagship console called "XBox", which includes a game streaming feature, which was its first new product launch in the past nine years, Microsoft said. The company's first-quarter results disappointed Wall Street, as the company missed revenue and non-GAAP operating margin targets, sending its shares down 8 percent. Microsoft also launched its own search engine, called Bing, to counter the shift to web-based services. "A year ago, we missed on margin. So
