NFL star Michael Strahan released as Officer Downely Hospitalized MIAMI -- NFL star Michael Strahan has been released from the hospital after being listed in critical condition after suffering a head injury in a car accident. No one else was hurt in the crash, which happened Thursday afternoon in Miami Beach. Strahan's attorney, David Cornwell, said Thursday that his client has been in surgery since early Wednesday. "I talked to him briefly before he went into the operating room," Cornwell said Thursday evening. Cornwell said Strahan's condition was stable. He did not say how Strahan was injured or whether a lawsuit against the driver would be filed. But a police report shows that the driver of a car involved in the accident told police that he was traveling from the southwest to the northeast and said he didn't notice the football player until he got very close to the intersection of Ocean Drive and Ocean 2nd Avenue. Police documents show the driver told officers he did not see the linebacker running across Ocean Drive, but said he saw the truck "catching up to him and when he did he hit his brakes." The driver told police he did not brake or change lanes until it was too late. Police say the Chevy Suburban driven by Strahan collided with a Chevy Aveo at the intersection. A few minutes earlier, the Miami Beach Police Department tweeted that the crash was reported at 12:49 p.m., adding that no injuries were reported, and that it was a "non-injury collision." Strahan, who plays for the New York Giants, was on an off-season vacation
