An outbreak of diarrhea occurred in a pediatric intensive care unit at a medical center. The source of infection was traced to one neonate with cystic fibrosis who had received extubation and was kept in an anaerobic tank. C. difficile was recovered from a pump outside the tank and from the tank water at the time of reconditioning. These findings suggest that a patient with cystic fibrosis who is mechanically ventilated can be infected with C. difficile even after extubation and extensive dental procedures. It's not every day that a food-based startup, Baked by Melissa, sells a frozen yogurt that tastes just like the healthy frozen treats it promises. But these flavored yogurt pints—which retail for $6, and are slightly smaller than standard pints—are exactly what New York City's Finest has needed for years. For over a decade, the snack-shop staple that started at the corner of Avenue A and 4th Street in the East Village has been sold (with apologies to Rudy Giuliani, who used to run it) at the Zaro's coffee shop. But those treats were not frozen. Last year, the
