Sociedade Interamericana de Psicologia COVID-19 Cite this article as: ... Sociedade Interamericana de Psicologia COVID-19...[Surgical treatment in the late post-radiation injuries of the spinal cord (author's transl)]. The authors report on 33 patients with late radiation injuries of the spinal cord treated surgically. The diagnosis was established by plain radiographs, myelography, metrizamide CT scan and neuroradiologic studies. All patients underwent decompressive laminectomy. The surgical treatment is primarily required in paresis and neurological signs of a local tumor process and in progressive spastic paraparesis. The indications for spinal cord transplantation are discussed. NEW YORK (Reuters) - The top U.S. Department of Justice official overseeing legal challenges to President Donald Trump's travel ban has been placed on administrative leave, a Justice Department official said on Wednesday. FILE PHOTO: Caroline Krass, the acting Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legal Policy, speaks to media as US Attorney General Jeff Sessions (not pictured) listens following their meeting with the President at the White House in Washington, DC, U.S. February 9, 2017. REUTERS/Aaron P. Bernstein Acting Assistant Attorney General Caroline Krass was placed on leave pending a recommendation from the department's Office of Professional Responsibility, the official said. Krass, who oversees the office that includes the lawyers who bring lawsuits against Trump, has been with the department for almost nine years, according to her profile on the DOJ website. "As you know, the Acting Assistant Attorney General of the National Security Division is currently on leave," Justice Department spokesman Ian Prior said in a statement. "We can't comment on the specifics of the leave, but we can assure you that the current Acting Assistant Attorney General is continuing in her duties and responsibilities at the National Security Division." The department said in a statement that Krass, who has been serving as the top official at the Justice Department in charge of the lawsuits against Trump's ban, was being placed on leave "to ensure a full investigation of any allegations concerning his conduct." "The Department of Justice is committed to upholding the highest standards of behavior and will not tolerate those who fail to meet those standards," Acting Attorney General Jeff Sessions said in the statement. ◆
