Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method of adjusting inrush current when starting a refrigeration cycle system. 2. Description of the Related Art The air-conditioning system is generally equipped with a compressor, which is driven by the engine of a vehicle, a motor, and a heat exchanger. When turning on the motor of the air-conditioning system, the compressor is driven, a refrigerant is supplied to the motor, and the compressor is driven by the motor. It is well known in the art that, when the compressor is started, the motor is de-energized temporarily to prevent pressure from increasing abruptly, and the refrigerant in the system is supplied to the compressor at a reduced pressure. An inrush current, which is called a momentary current, is generated at the start of the compressor, and is in a range of about 0.3 to 2 A
