Brushing the Clones | Flash. --- | --- Erasing with the Eraser | Flash. All brushes in Photoshop have settings such as size, hardness, and other characteristics. When you apply an eraser, you erase the pixels that are covered by a brush. To erase a brush, you simply click it in the Brushes palette. You can also select a brush in the toolbox and choose Erase Brush. The Eraser tool has three modes of operation: Erase, Bevel & Emboss, and Blur. When you erase, the pixels are removed, and the image is left with a feather edge. The Bevel and Emboss options cause the edges to be filled in with a feather. When you blur with the Eraser tool, the edges are blurred or blurred feather. You can choose to keep the contrast of the original image or modify it by choosing one of the Contrast, Hue & Saturation, or Hue & Saturation - Colorize options. The Photomerge function allows you to combine multiple images into one seamless image. In this section, we explore the tools available in the functions panel. You will find that the functions available with Photoshop are much more powerful than any camera. # 10.2 Adobe Photoshop Image Editor Tools Image editing tools in Photoshop allow you to manipulate the image in a variety of ways, and more than anything else, they allow you to achieve that perfect look. Editing and altering images in Photoshop is something that is a lot of fun, and it is well worth the learning curve! In this chapter, we look at the various tools in the functions panel (listed in Figure 10.2), including the Liquify tool, the selection tools, the zoom tool, the brand new brush tools, and the pen tool. All of these tools save the image to your computer or to an external device. Figure 10.2 : Photoshop has a variety of tools available for modifying the images in your computer. The tool you choose depends on the effect you want to create, the image you want to create the effect on, and the effect you are going for. You can add special effects to your images to create a mood, bring out a specific feature, make an image look fantastic, achieve a very specific look, or create an effect that will change the way you look at images forever. We will touch on a few of the more common tools, and you will be able to find

“However, there is some good news for the fishing communities in that the council can now begin to look at what future changes might mean for the benefit of local people.” Following consideration, the council will determine how the number of salmon fishing days are allocated to each of the 12 river confluence zones. The council also voted to retain all existing non-fishing days but will provide greater emphasis on smaller catch sizes. However, this will be for anglers only (not for native fish, including brown trout). “Councils have a duty to balance the needs of all those who fish with the requirements of habitat protection, fisheries management, and the best interests of the environment,” Mr May added. “I look forward to working with the stakeholders in rivers under the control of Herefordshire Council and the Cheshire, Merseyside and Staffordshire Local Waters Joint Committee, to ensure the need for all the interests is met.” Andrew Fleming, Environment, Local Government and Rural Affairs spokesperson for the Conservatives, said: “This is a sad day. I am saddened for the families and businesses that relied on the fish that we now have to cull. We have had a system where we just let the numbers grow to an extent where it is now unaffordable and unsustainable. “I am pleased that the Council is committing itself to restoring the stocks of our rivers.” David Eden, Cheshire, Merseyside and Staffordshire Local Waters Joint Committee chairman, said: “I am delighted that the negotiations between local waters and the fishing associations have gone as well as they have. “We are delighted that Herefordshire Council has committed itself to the restoration of stocks, and we look forward to working with the Council as well as the Joint Committee’s other members to make sure this is achieved.” As well as fishing days, anglers were also provided with the opportunity to take part in a catch and release policy that enables them to catch fish with two hooks and release back into the river. There has been a slight reduction in the number of fishermen, in spite of the fact that the government’s law commission has recommended that licences should be issued for catch and release fishing. Planning applications for new bowfront row fishing tackles in the River Wye and River Severn in Gloucestershire have been rejected. Householders living on the Treff
