DownloadÂ .Q: How can I enable cross domain XMLHttpRequest requests using XSP? I'm using ExoPlayer to deliver media to my iOS application, and I'm using the ExoPlayer-XSP library to stream media from ExoPlayer's remote source. This has caused me to hit the "Cross domain requests are not allowed by default" wall. I've seen this answer, but I need to communicate via an XMLHttpRequest, not just a standard POST (thus the XSP library). A: I ended up contacting the developer. He told me that this is not possible at the moment as the XSP library is currently a work in progress. It will be available through github in the future. I couldn't find anything about this on the XSP wiki either. This isn't a valid answer to the question, but I'm adding this here because someone else might find it useful. Q: How to create WPF user control for DataGrid? I'm trying to create my own custom dataGrid using xaml. I want to make custom-like features to it, so I made my own user control, to know how many items is it possible to fit in it. My xaml file for control is:
