This requires the Ftp command which is not going to run on windows XP. I tried running it on a Windows 7 VM that had a server operating system and it worked. Just out of curiosity, why would this be a problem? A: Here are the steps I would use: 1) Download and install the FileZilla ftp server from Run FileZilla. Click on menu Edit > Preferences... on the menu bar, go to the Connection tab, and uncheck the option Use Passive Mode. Then enable the option Execute Server Self-test. Save all the changes. 2) Go to a web server, a linux or a windows one, and download the FileZilla zip archive, or get the standalone version from ftp://ftp.filezilla-project.org/filezilla-3.9.3-win32.zip. Extract the FileZilla directory to a folder in your computer, then open a command prompt, cd to that folder, and execute the install file using the command CMD /c /q /i "FileZilla-3.9.3-win32" This is assuming that you have no previous installations of FileZilla. If you already have FileZilla installed, do not install the version supplied by the FileZilla web site. 3) When FileZilla starts up, launch the 'Test Connection' dialog from FileZilla menu. I would prefer the address that is automatically listed by the server (ftp.kudelskisecurity.com), but you can use any other address. Make sure the Automatically Detect Settings option is unchecked. Then click the Button labeled Start. 4) Now from FileZilla, upload the source code of ACA Capture Pro into the directory where you have unzipped FileZilla from step #2. Click on the menu File > Switch to Local Directory. Select that directory and click the button Switch. After the uploading has finished, click the menu File > Quit. When you have quit FileZilla, you will have downloaded a zip archive with ACA Capture Pro inside it. 5) Extract the zip archive to the location where you have installed FileZilla, then open a command prompt, cd to the directory that contains that archive, and use the command CMD /q /c /i "ACA_Capture_Pro.exe" This is assuming that you d0c515b9f4

I have been looking at the built-in Function.prototype.bind but it doesn't seem to work for what I want. A: If I understand what you want to do correctly, you simply want to do this: function fake() { return function() { return "outer"; } } console.log(fake()); // -> "outer" But if you want to use a fake anonymous function, you can do so: function fake() { return function() { return "outer"; } } var fakeFunc = fake(); console.log(fakeFunc()); // -> "outer" Image copyright Getty Images The Labour Party and the leaders of eight trade unions have joined forces to stop Britain leaving the EU without a deal.
