The typical workflow for a Photoshop user is to open, edit, and save an image. With some of the functions in Photoshop, you can work and save a new image at the same time, and you can save various formats, including JPEG and TIFF. Importing and opening a Photoshop file After you transfer an image from another application to Photoshop, you open it and get ready for the editing process. Photoshop's interface is based on layers, so when you open an image, you create a new document with all the layers. (You may need to first add an empty layer in your Photoshop file before opening the image.) Making sure that the image is the right format Photoshop can open files in any of the following formats: JPEG, TIFF, GIF, or BMP. JPEG files provide lossless compression, which means that you don't lose image quality when you open a JPEG in Photoshop. However, the color quality isn't as good as a TIFF. TIFF provides lossless compression, and the color quality is as good as JPEG. On the other hand, TIFFs are quite large compared to JPEGs, so you may have to give up some file size to get the quality. GIF (Graphics Interchange Format) files can provide lossless compression, but they don't provide any special effects. BMP (bitmap) files are monochrome, or grayscale images. All of these formats provide several levels of compression and can be lossy or lossless. (Lossy means that you lose some quality when you save the image.) The file size is the same in all four types of images, even with lossy compression. Here's how to select the correct file format for your image: 1. From the Save dialog box, choose File⇒Save, or Ctrl+S (⌘-S on a Mac). The Save As dialog box appears. 2. In the Save As dialog box, make sure that the file type is the proper one, as described in the preceding list. If you don't see the file type you need, use the default options to add it. 3. Type a name for your file in the Save As text box. Keep the default filename extension, which is.psd. 4. Select a location where you want to save the file. 5. Click Niebo Łódzkie Niebo Łódzkie () is a village in the administrative district of Gmina Zbiczno, within Olsztyn County, Warmian-Masurian Voivodeship, in northern Poland. It lies approximately north-west of Zbiczno and north of the regional capital Olsztyn. The village has a population of 28. References Category:Villages in Olsztyn CountyQ: Mysql Error #1064 Multiple primary key defined error I am new to php and Mysql, when i try to run the following query(which is working fine in the Mysql Workbench) I am getting the error #1064(MySQL Error) SELECT * FROM threads WHERE id IN (SELECT MAX(id) FROM threads) UNION SELECT * FROM threads WHERE id= 1; Here is my table structure : CREATE TABLE IF NOT EXISTS `threads` (`id` int(10) unsigned NOT NULL AUTO_INCREMENT, `title` varchar(80) NOT NULL, `message` varchar(80) NOT NULL, `author` int(10) unsigned NOT NULL DEFAULT '0', `poster` int(10) unsigned NOT NULL DEFAULT '0', PRIMARY KEY (`id`), KEY `author` (`author`)) ENGINE=MyISAM AUTO_INCREMENT=17 DEFAULT CHARSET=latin1 A: The problem with this query is that it will try to retrieve the first MAX(id) value with each SQL statement (and by default the MAX(id) value may be different for each SQL statement). To fix this, it has to be replaced with an INNER JOIN like this: SELECT * FROM threads INNER JOIN (SELECT MAX(id) max_id FROM threads) max_tbl WHERE id IN (SELECT MAX(id) FROM threads) UNION SELECT * FROM threads WHERE id= 1; Now, if the subquery is empty (or MAX(id) is NULL), it will retrieve all threads.

Q: How to count the number of trailing zeros in an integer? For example, the number 1610100010 has an exact number of trailing zeros. If the integer is not an exact number of zeros, how would I count the number of trailing zeros? This is an example of where I'm at right now, but I don't know how to create a table or loop and can only think of the following (shown below) for i := 0; i >= 8 if x == 0 { return tmp - 8 } } return x } Playground Alternative approach for i >= 8 if x == 0 { return tmp - 8 } } return x } Q: How to convert a file to a Pandas Dataframe with a list of headers I have a file that looks like this: x v1 v2 .. v20 I want to convert it to a Dataframe that has the first row as headers (x,v1,v
