

Motion capture data used in FIFA 2K20 HyperMotion technology adds an additional layer of authenticity to FIFA 22 through the collection and subsequent usage of motion capture data collected from real-life athletes during the development of the game. The data provides a more accurate representation of players' movement while playing football, and will add physicality and accuracy to FIFA's coverages, ball flight, and features like goalkeepers' saves and throw-ins. FIFA 20 gameplay video Players wearing a motion capture suit The data collected by the suit used in development gives FIFA 22 intelligent behaviour and adds a new dimension to the attack options available for players. With the motion data, the VFX team has been able to simulate the ball to a much greater degree than has previously been possible. Even a small throw-in can now generate a beautiful parabolic trajectory, which is not possible for a traditional rebounding function alone. Moreover, the simulation can also support a variety of free kicks. Adi Ibrahim, Creative Director on FIFA 2K20 Simulation that lasts longer The artificial intelligence in FIFA 2K20 has been reworked to provide a greater variety and greater consistency of movement. Players will always support the pass and attack their team-mates under real-life conditions. In addition, new dribbling and non-dribbling sprinting AI ensure that players truly represent the level of physicality in the top tier of football. FIFA 2K20's AI tries to create space for every player and work with the ball to create opportunities and build play. If the pass to your team-mate is unsuccessful or if there is an obstacle in the way, the AI will try to pass to another player. Adi Ibrahim, Creative Director on FIFA 2K20 Players will always support the pass and attack their team-mates under real-life conditions FIFA 2K20's AI also uses an intuitive decision-making system based on emotions. Players that have received a pass or drive into space feel happy, and if they are playing against a goalkeeper they feel happy if they force a save. When a good shot comes in, players feel happy. Adi Ibrahim, Creative Director on FIFA 2K20 A more accurate virtual atmosphere The weather system in FIFA 2K20 provides a more accurate atmosphere with real-time interaction between sun, clouds, wind and wind direction. Furthermore, weather changes

Q&A What are the new features of FIFA 22? Gameplay All-new control schemes and a new control model feature have been developed that are deeper and more intuitive. You will notice that the new control models are more precise, making it easier for players to have greater control of the ball. The upcoming and improved control is based on the principles of gameplay developed by SimManager CTO Michael Bragetto, FIFA Lead Playability Programmer and External Playability Developer Vito Proto, and FIFA Playability Community Manager Brandy Dyer. A new animation set based on that of the main player animations allows for more realistic playing animations. In addition, player performances have been improved and from this year, the Pass, Shoot, and Tackling animations will behave more accurately based on the intentions of the player. The new animations also allow for more natural movements, so players will be able to express themselves better on the pitch. A new minimap features in-depth information about the player's positioning as well as contextual information that will help you immediately take advantage of the ball's location. The minimap also features a new three-dimensional visual perspective. Social The social features of the game have been enhanced.
