'Identity Thief': 11 Million New Yorkers Could Be Identified By Trained Cat A group of volunteers will be digitally breaking and entering into New York City residents' homes this weekend -- in order to see if they can identify the thieves, whom they're calling "N.Y.C. Idesmen." The "N.Y.C. Idesmen" is a group of people who have been selected to undergo the program, along with a group of volunteers. Once they enter homes, they will photograph each resident's mailbox and take a photo of their door lock. Then they will do the same for each resident's car. The group's ultimate aim is to create a profile of every New Yorker's interior and exterior, including photos and text descriptions of the mailbox, car and person. If the officers are able to identify the thieves, then the police will be able to place a reward on their head. This is the first time the program has been put into action, as the police have had trouble keeping up with thefts of purses and other small items. According to the chief of the New York Police Department, they can potentially identify up to 11 million suspects. "We got a lot of complaints, mostly about stolen property," he said. "We have a lot of work to do." A few tips to remember if you're a victim of a crime: If you leave your vehicle unattended, remove the keys If you leave a door unlocked, check it every few minutes All serial numbers should be either on the handle or hidden somewhere around the vehicle Check the house before going in and, if possible, get a lock from a hardware store The police have begun to track the stolen goods by entering the serial numbers into a database. recipe of short-cut noodles, tomato sauce and mozzarella. This way, I know the quality of ingredients. It's not the best lasagna because it's made from scratch, but it is usually made from whatever ingredients are on hand. This is a quick, easy and delicious version that I'll be sharing with you. The only thing I changed is the method of baking the noodles. It took way too much time and effort the first time. I'm a control freak, so I don't like things done in hurry. This time, I baked the pasta using the stretch and fold method. It takes less time and it's easier. (Tip: Make sure to rinse the noodles well. Some people like lasagna without the sauce, but I find it's better with tomato sauce on it.) Cook the noodles in water until they are just slightly undercooked.
