Patterns and trends of morbidity and mortality in pregnant African American women from 1970 to 1995. In this study, we examined the patterns of maternal morbidity and mortality among African American women, in conjunction with changes in maternal mortality ratios (MMRs), since 1970. Data for 40 years of maternal mortality from the National Center for Health Statistics were analyzed. Our data revealed that the rates of maternal mortality and major morbidity had significantly decreased from 1970 to 1995. However, African American women still experienced a disproportionate percentage of adverse perinatal outcomes, including high rates of preterm delivery, low birth weight (LBW), and hypertensive disorders. These findings provide documentation of ongoing disparities in maternal morbidity and mortality among African American women.

KANPUR: Bahujan Samaj Party 's (BSP) youngest leader and legislator from Ghatotkach falls, Ganga Devi, who was elected from Baghpat Lok Sabha seat in a bypoll earlier this year, is all set to enter the Uttar Pradesh Assembly on October 29 after more than a century. What's New in the?

Q: SQL query to fetch the data according to month I am new to SQL server. I have to apply a query which will fetch the data in a particular month. let say the data in SQL server from 01 jan is called table1,02 jan called table2,03 jan called table3,and so on for the entire year. Can anyone please give me the query for that.? Thanks in advance Regards A:

The correct answer is something like the following. I have not tried it, so I don't know if this works on SQL Server or not. `SELECT table1 FROM table1 WHERE DATEPART(mm, Table1Date) = MONTH (GETDATE())`

This should of course be put into a proper stored procedure instead, but this will get you started. I would also look into using Table-Valued Functions, which would allow you to do this from within SQL Server. This may also be a better option for the long-term.
