Alternatively, forÂ .This invention relates to a solution-coated polyolefin substrate suitable for manufacturing an optical fiber or similar, to an optical fiber made from the solution-coated polyolefin substrate, and to a process for manufacturing the solution-coated polyolefin substrate. Optical fibers are attracting attention from various viewpoints. Optical fibers generally are mass-produced by a process which coats a solution of an optical fiber-forming material such as an optical fiber-forming prepolymer or a precursor thereof on a substrate core which has been formed previously and comprises a polyolefin, a polyester or a polyamide, and which, after the solution has been coated, takes such steps as drying, applying a protective film, or giving a specific treatment to improve the properties of the resulting optical fiber. At the present, it is mainly the process which coats a solution of an optical fiber-forming material on a substrate core which has been formed previously, namely the process of coating a solution of an optical fiber-forming material on a substrate core, which is the current mainstream of the so-called "solution-coating" process. As such a substrate, therefore, there has been used a so-called "solution-coated polyolefin substrate", which is produced by coating a solution of a polyolefin-based fiber-forming prepolymer on a surface of a substrate (usually the surface of a monofilament of an

Serial sections of tumors obtained from 140 patients with endometrial adenocarcinoma were analyzed immunohistochemically by using a monoclonal antibody to pancytokeratin. Peritumoral lymphatic invasion (PLI) in these tumors was detected in 28 cases (20%). The tumor grade, tumor type, and level of nuclear pleomorphism showed no significant association with PLI. PLI was found more often in patients who were considered to have an undifferentiated tumor type than in those who had a well-differentiated tumor type (P less than.001). The frequency of PLI was significantly higher in patients with International Federation of Gynecology and Obstetrics (FIGO) stage III than in those with stage I (P less than.001). PLI was also significantly associated with the presence of lymph-vascular space invasion (P less than.01). PLI was observed in 7 (14%) of the 51 patients with distant metastasis and in 3 (5%) of the 89 with regional metastasis. The frequency of PLI in patients who died from recurrent disease was significantly higher than that in those who died of other causes (P less than.01) or those who were alive at last follow-up (P less than.001). In a univariate analysis, PLI was found to have a significant association with both disease-free survival (P less than.0001) and overall survival (P less than.001). In a multivariate analysis, PLI was a significant independent prognostic factor.// // Generated by class-dump 3.5 (64 bit) (Debug version compiled Oct 15 2018 10:31:50). // // class-dump is Copyright (C) 1997-1998, 2000-2001, 2004-2015 by Steve Nygard. // #import
