Wednesday, September 6, 2011 A Guy Walks Into a Bar... So I was bored and bored and watching the hockey. I was at my friend's house watching the game. There was a reason I was bored, 'cause they were showing the Packers game. I wanted to see the #1 pick from the draft, Joe Mosely. So, Mosely is a halfback for Iowa. And, we were watching some Iowa highlights. They were playing the Iowa Hawkeyes, and the music was playing, so I started dancing. It's just dancing, you know? I'm not doing anything to be taken away from work. I'm not doing any of that "this is for work, I'm here and I'm here to be observed, I'm here to write and do social media" thing. Dancing like a maniac is what you call fun. A friend of mine who looks like a high school hip hop dancer was doing this dance, so I started doing it. So, a guy walks in the bar. He looks at me. Oh, I am not my hair. And, I look down at my clothes. That music was playing loud enough, so that I just grabbed my phone, and started writing. I told the friend, that since we were on pause, I'd like him to take a picture of me with my phone. He can't get a good picture. So, I told him to just get me and take a picture of me and make it blurry, so you can't see too much. And, he did that. So, here's the picture. You can't even see my hair in the picture. Oh, and I am not attempting to blend in with the bar. I am attempting to blend in with the football. So, enjoy. Oh, and yeah, I'm doing something. Pics or it didn't happen.For such a unique and mind-bending product, it's not easy to understand what exactly the device is. However, if you are familiar with virtual reality, you'll know what to expect. The Gear 360 is a VR camera which will ultimately allow you to engage with 360-degree video and 360-degree pictures. This is in contrast to the traditional 360 degree video that you see on YouTube or Google Street View. In addition to being able to

Q: Are these async calls blocking? I'm trying to figure out if a request made through Retrofit is blocking on the device so I can use it in the background. To my understanding it isn't. (edit: I just tried it myself) So, I have a service which fetches user information from an API. public class UserService { private Context context; private UserRepository userRepository; public UserService(Context context, UserRepository userRepository) { this.context = context; this.userRepository = userRepository; } public List getAllUsers() { List users = new ArrayList(); Retrofit retrofit = buildRetrofit(); apiInterface = retrofit.create(apiInterface); Call> call = apiInterface.getAllUsers(); call.enqueue(new Callback>() { @Override public void onResponse(Call> call, Response> response) { if(response.isSuccess()){ users = response.body(); Log.d(TAG, "retrieved from server:" + users.toString()); } else { Log.e(TAG, response.message()); } } @Override
