Potential of methamphetamine- and cocaine-induced dopamine release in the rat caudate putamen by dopamine D2/D3 receptor agonists. In vivo microdialysis of the caudate putamen of freely moving rats (n = 28) was used to examine the ability of dopamine (DA) D2/D3 receptor agonists to potentiate methamphetamine (MA)- or cocaine (COC)-induced DA release. The systemic (i.v.) administration of the D2/D3 receptor agonists quinpirole (QUIN, 0.5-2 mg/kg) or 3-(3,4-dihydroxyphenyl)-N-propylpiperidine (DPPP, 1-4 mg/kg) potentiated the increase in extracellular DA in the caudate putamen induced by either MA (15 mg/kg, i.v.) or COC (15 mg/kg, i.v.). The rise in extracellular DA induced by MA was decreased to baseline values in animals pretreated with the preferential D2 antagonist (-)-sulpiride (SULP, 2 mg/kg). The same treatment with SULP antagonized the effect of QUIN and DPPP. The pretreatment of rats with the selective DA D2 antagonist R(-)-7-chloro-8-hydroxy-3-methyl-1-phenyl-2,3,4,5-tetrahydro-1H-3-benzazepine (SCH 23390, 0.5-2 mg/kg) and of the preferential D3 receptor antagonist R(+)-7-chloro-8-hydroxy-3-methyl-1-phenyl-2,3,4,5-tetrahydro-1H-3-benzazepine-7-sulphonic acid (SUB 3, 2 mg/kg) also blocked the potentiating action of QUIN and DPPP, suggesting that these agonists stimulate D2/D3 receptors to increase DA release. Neither Sulp nor SCH 23390 affected the increase in extracellular DA observed when animals were given MA or COC alone. The results of the present study indicate that D2/D3 receptor agonists induce a potentiation of the increase in extracellular DA in the caudate putamen of freely moving rats. The stimulation of D2 and

Q: Mapping returning a List(Of Map) I have the following Data Model Public class Product Public Property ProductName As String Public Property Category As New List(Of Category) End Class Public Class Category Public Property CategoryName As String Public Property Products As New List(Of Product) End Class I am now trying to map this out to use EF through an Entity Framework DbContext. However, the Product Manager returns a List(Of Map) and I am struggling as this is not supported directly by EF. If I was using native SQL I would just create a Stored Procedure with the following signature -- @SQL SELECT id, name, (SELECT category_name, product_id FROM products_category WHERE products_category.id = products.product_id) FROM products Does anyone have a clue how I can map this out to EF? A: The schema you are describing is a self-join. You can try to implement it with a query similar to SELECT p.id, p.name, c.category_name, c.products

FROM products AS p JOIN products_category AS pc
ON p.product_id = pc.product_id JOIN categories AS c
ON c.id = pc.category_id WHERE c.category_name =
'category_name' EF is ok with self-joins if it knows about the PK. Try out the following mapping:

modelBuilder.Entity() .HasOne(a => a.Category)
```

.WithMany(b => b.Products) .HasForeignKey(c =>

c.CategoryId);

The above is what EF needs to know about the relationship. The rest, the cascading delete, should be automatic. Download Google Chrome
