CSS These days, if you have a Web site or an image for your site that you want to have look consistent across all browsers, the easiest way to get it done is to use the Cascading Style Sheets, or CSS. It's a way for you to name a style (looking for variations in color, font, background, and so on) that you want applied to all of the images or text in your site, so that you don't have to write the same code (look for variations in style) in multiple places. Adobe Photoshop supports CSS directly when you create your design, giving you the option of automatically applying CSS settings

Q: Can we get a setting to limit the number of chat messages for the day? There are times where I find myself checking chat every time I log in (including log out and back in) because there's a surge of messages that seems to happen every morning. I don't want to mention an exact number, but each day I seem to get at least 100 new messages. Could there be a setting to limit the number of chat messages per day? A: I have now noticed a system that counts incoming messages in the chat area and warns you if you send more than 50 messages a day, in the following way. I have no idea if this system is actually used by Stack Exchange, but I'm still wondering why it isn't mentioned in the `/help/chat` tag. I have also found the bot command `countmsg` to filter out messages: You can also filter message history to show either all messages or only messages older than a certain amount of time. For example: `/countmsg` will show all messages older than ago; if you specify a time greater than the last recorded message, it will include all messages in the chat. A: Thanks for the suggestions on how to flag such messages. I don't think it's a fair solution however, because it's an easy solution but also an arbitrary limit. To limit the number of messages in chat to some value, it could be done by having a small bot which counts the number of messages for that day in chat and if that's reached, it will automatically limit the maximum number of messages per day to the number it's reached. A: Just setting a chat window to autoscroll to the bottom (Ctrl+L) may solve the problem. In Our Time: A Conversation Between Science and Democracy - cj
